A. County Council Surveyor's Department

Reported in 1972 that there was no contact with the Nature Conservancy or the Naturalists' Trust, and that there were no scheduled verges of conservation importance.

B. Nature Conservancy

Reported in 1973 that there was no direct contact with the Surveyor's Department, but that the Naturalists' Trust was being encouraged to make contact. It was understood that the Trust might have a number of possible verge sites for notification to the Department.

C. Monmouthshire Naturalists' Trust

The Trust reported in April 1974 that its Scientific Sub-Committee had been drawing up a list of verges of conservation importance for a number of years, but that this had not yet been completed. There was some hesitancy over the wisdom of drawing attention to certain sensitive areas. There had been contact with the County Surveyor and members of his staff several years ago, but there was no mention of any recent meetings or liaison.
